

Should I pay my student loans while I wait for the Administration's new debt relief program?

Yes. Interest will start accruing on September 1, 2023, and first payments are due in October. When designing a new debt relief program, the Department of Education will consider ways to ensure that borrowers making payments do not reduce their eligibility for debt relief.